1.1 Operator of the Website. MT Wyoming, a Wyoming corporation ("MT Wyoming," the "Company," "we," "us," or "our"), owns and operates the website located at mtwyoming.com, including every page, subdomain, feature, form, and item of content made available through it (collectively, the "Website").
1.2 Purpose and scope. This Privacy Policy (the "Policy") describes the manner in which we collect, use, disclose, retain, and otherwise process information in connection with the Website and with communications directed to us by email, telephone, mail, or any other channel concerning the Website or a prospective or existing business relationship with us.
1.3 Nature of this Policy. This Policy is a notice of our practices. To the fullest extent permitted by law, it does not constitute a contract and does not create contractual rights or obligations.
1.4 Relationship to the Terms of Use. Access to and use of the Website are governed by our Terms of Use, as posted on the Website (the "Terms"). Capitalized terms used but not defined in this Policy have the meanings assigned to them in the Terms. Section 16 of this Policy addresses the application of the Terms to privacy matters.
1.5 Definition of personal information. "Personal information" means information that identifies, relates to, describes, or is reasonably capable of being associated with a particular individual, as defined by applicable law. The term excludes aggregated, de-identified, and anonymized information, and publicly available information to the extent excluded by applicable law.
1.6 Acknowledgment. By accessing or using the Website, or by providing information to us, you acknowledge that you have read and understood this Policy. If you do not agree with this Policy, you must refrain from using the Website and from providing information to us. You cannot submit a message through the contact form on the Website unless you check the box stating that you agree to the Terms and this Policy.
1.7 Information concerning other individuals. If you provide information concerning another individual, you represent that you are authorized to do so and to permit us to process that information in accordance with this Policy.

2. EXCLUSIONS FROM THIS POLICY

This Policy does not apply to the following:

(a) Affiliate offerings. The websites, products, services, software, and platforms of our current and future parents, subsidiaries, affiliates, divisions, brands, and businesses under common ownership, control, or management (collectively, our "Affiliates"), each of which is governed by its own terms and privacy notices.
(b) Information processed on behalf of others. Information that we process on behalf of a client, an Affiliate, or another organization in the capacity of service provider, processor, business associate, or agent, which is governed by that organization's privacy notice and by our written agreement with it.
(c) Regulated information. Information subject to sector-specific law, including protected health information under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act and nonpublic personal information under the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act, which is governed by the notices and agreements applicable to it.
(d) Workforce information. Information concerning our job applicants, employees, and independent contractors, which is addressed in separate notices where required by law.

(e) Third-party properties. Websites, platforms, and services that we do not own or control, which are governed by the terms and policies of their respective operators.

3. INFORMATION WE COLLECT

3.1 General. We may collect information directly from you, automatically through the Website, and from other sources, as described in this Section 3. The information collected depends on the nature of your interaction with us. The inclusion of a category below does not indicate that we collect that category of information from every individual.

3.2 Information you provide. We collect information that you provide to us, including the following:

(a) Identifiers and contact details: name, company, job title, email address, telephone number, and postal address, including the details you provide through the contact form on the Website.

(b) Inquiry content: the topic you select on the contact form (General question, Consulting, Partnerships and vendors, or Something else), the content of your message, and any other information or content submitted through the contact form or by email, telephone, mail, in person, or any other channel, including any attachments or files you send.

(c) Business and professional information: your organization, your role, your business requirements, and details of any proposed or existing consulting, partnership, vendor, or other business relationship.

(d) Transaction and relationship records: contracts, invoices, billing contacts, and payment records relating to services provided or received by us. The Website itself does not accept or process payments.

(e) Communications records: the content, dates, and history of your communications with us and, where permitted by law and subject to any required notice or consent, recordings or transcripts of calls and meetings.

(f) Preferences and feedback: communication preferences, survey responses, suggestions, and comments.

(g) Other information: any other information that you elect to provide.

3.3 Information collected automatically. When you access the Website, we and our service providers may automatically collect the following:

(a) Device and network information: IP address, browser type and version, operating system, device type, language settings, and general location derived from IP address.

(b) Usage information: pages requested, referring and exit pages, dates and times of access, links selected, the page from which a form was submitted, and error and diagnostic data.

(c) Security and anti-abuse information: data used to detect spam, automated traffic, and misuse, such as a hidden form field that must be left empty, submission timing, and rate-limiting records, which may include hashed or truncated IP addresses.

(d) Consent and agreement records: the choices you make in the cookie consent banner and the "Your privacy choices" panel (together, the "Consent Tool"), including the categories you allow or refuse and the date and time of your choice; and, when you submit the contact form, the fact that you checked the box agreeing to the Terms and this Policy, a reference code for your submission, and the date and time it was sent. These records may include technical information such as your IP address and browser type.

(e) Cookies and similar technologies: information collected through the technologies described in Section 4.

3.4 Information from other sources. We may obtain information about you from: (a) our Affiliates; (b) clients, partners, vendors, referral sources, and your employer or colleagues; (c) service providers that support hosting, security, consent management, analytics, and communications; and (d) publicly available sources, professional networking platforms, business directories, and commercial data providers.

3.5 Combination of information. We may combine information obtained from any of the foregoing sources and process the combined information in accordance with this Policy.

4. COOKIES, ANALYTICS, AND SIMILAR TECHNOLOGIES

4.1 Use of technologies. We and our service providers may use cookies, pixels, tags, scripts, log files, local storage, and similar technologies to operate and secure the Website, retain preferences, measure traffic, analyze use of the Website, and support our communications and business development activities, subject to your choices described in this Section 4.
4.2 Consent banner. When you first visit the Website, the Consent Tool displays a banner with three choices: "Reject All," "Accept All," and "Preferences." The Website operates on an opt-in basis: no optional cookie, script, or embedded third-party content is loaded unless you allow its category. "Preferences" opens the "Your privacy choices" panel, which lists the categories and providers in use at the time and lets you allow or refuse each optional category and save your choices.
4.3 Categories. The Consent Tool groups cookies and similar technologies into three categories: Strictly necessary, Analytics, and Advertising and marketing. Strictly necessary items are required for the Website to work and stay secure and to store your privacy and display settings, and they cannot be switched off. Analytics and Advertising and marketing are optional. A choice you make for a category also covers any provider added to that category later.
4.4 Strictly necessary items. We and our service providers may use cookies, local storage, and similar technologies that are necessary to deliver, operate, and secure the Website and to remember your choices, including your privacy and display settings.
4.5 Optional technologies and embedded content. As of the Effective Date, the Website does not use analytics or advertising cookies. If we add optional technologies, or embed content supplied by other companies such as video players, maps, or anti-spam services, they will be listed in the Consent Tool under their category and will not load unless you allow that category. Blocked embedded content is replaced by a placeholder. Loading it sends data such as your IP address to the company that provides it.
4.6 Third-party collection. Once you allow an optional category, third parties that provide technologies or embedded content in that category may collect information about your online activities over time and across different websites when you use the Website, including your IP address, device details, and what you view and do on the Website, and may use that information for their own purposes, as their privacy policies describe.
4.7 Changing your choices. You may review or change your choices at any time by selecting "Your privacy choices" at the bottom of any page of the Website. Your choices are saved in the browser you are using and apply from the time you save them. They do not undo data already sent, and they do not carry over to another browser or device. If you clear your cookies, the banner will appear again on your next visit.
4.8 Records of consent. When you make a choice in the Consent Tool, we may keep a record of that choice, as described in Section 3.3(d), so that we can honor it and demonstrate compliance with applicable law.
4.9 Display Options. The "Display options" link at the bottom of each page lets you change text size, contrast, link underlining, text spacing, motion, and font for the Website. Your settings apply only to the Website, in the browser in which you set them. They are stored only in that browser, are not sent to us, and can be reset at any time from the Display Options panel or by clearing your browser's site data.
4.10 Browser controls. Most browsers permit you to refuse or delete cookies and local storage through their settings. Doing so may impair the functionality of certain parts of the Website. If you block the strictly necessary items described in Section 4.4, the Website cannot remember your consent choices or display settings, and the banner may appear on every visit. Analytics and advertising providers may also make their own opt-out mechanisms available.

4.11 Do Not Track. There is no uniform standard for browser "Do Not Track" signals, and the Website does not respond to them.
4.12 Opt-out preference signals. As stated in Section 6.1, we do not sell personal information or share it for cross-context behavioral advertising. In addition, the Website honors the Global Privacy Control opt-out preference signal for every visitor, whether or not applicable law requires it. If your browser sends that signal, the Website treats it as "Reject all" for every optional category and displays a notice saying so. You may override the signal for the Website only by confirming the override in the "Your privacy choices" panel and then allowing the categories you choose.
4.13 Modification of technologies. The technologies in use may change from time to time. We may add, replace, or discontinue any technology in our discretion and will update this Policy where required by law. The Consent Tool lists the categories and items in use at the time you view it.

5. USE OF INFORMATION

To the extent permitted by law, we may use information for the following business and commercial purposes:

(a) Responding and communicating: to review, route, respond to, and follow up on inquiries.
(b) Business relationships: to evaluate, establish, perform, and administer consulting, partnership, vendor, and other business relationships, including contracting, billing, and collections.
(c) Coordination among our businesses: to refer an inquiry to the Affiliate best positioned to address it and to coordinate activities among the businesses we operate.
(d) Operations and improvement: to operate, maintain, troubleshoot, analyze, and improve the Website, our services, and our internal operations, and to research and develop new services and lines of business.
(e) Marketing and business development: to provide information about us and our Affiliates, including services, updates, and events, subject to your elections under Section 8 and to applicable law.
(f) Security, integrity, and enforcement: to monitor use of the Website; to detect and prevent spam, fraud, abuse, security incidents, and other harmful or unlawful activity; and to investigate violations of, and enforce, the Terms and our other agreements.
(g) Legal and regulatory compliance: to comply with applicable laws, regulations, legal process, and governmental requests; to keep records of your choices in the Consent Tool and of your agreement to the Terms and this Policy; to satisfy tax, accounting, audit, insurance, and record-keeping requirements; and to establish, exercise, or defend legal claims.
(h) Corporate transactions: to evaluate, negotiate, or complete a merger, acquisition, financing, reorganization, sale of assets, or similar transaction.
(i) Aggregation and de-identification: to create aggregated, de-identified, or anonymized information, which we may use and disclose for any lawful purpose.
(j) Other purposes: for any purpose disclosed at the time of collection, any purpose to which you consent, and any other purpose that is reasonably compatible with the context in which the information was collected, as permitted by law.

6. DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION

6.1 No sale of personal information. As of the Effective Date, we do not sell personal information for monetary or other valuable consideration, and we do not share personal information with third parties for cross-context behavioral advertising. If that changes, we will update this Policy and provide any opt-out mechanism that applicable law requires. Optional analytics and advertising technologies load only if you allow their category in the Consent Tool, and you may refuse or withdraw that permission at any time through the Consent Tool or by sending the Global Privacy Control signal, as described in Section 4.

6.2 Categories of recipients. We may disclose information to the following categories of recipients:

(a) Affiliates: for the purposes described in this Policy, including to enable the appropriate business to respond to you.

(b) Service providers and contractors: persons that perform services on our behalf, including website hosting, consent management, email, information technology support, security, analytics, customer relationship management, communications, payment processing, and administrative support.

(c) Professional advisors: attorneys, accountants, auditors, insurers, financial institutions, and consultants.

(d) Business partners: partners, vendors, and other organizations, at your request or where reasonably necessary to respond to your inquiry or to provide a service.

(e) Parties to a corporate transaction: actual or prospective acquirers, investors, lenders, successors, and their respective advisors, in connection with a merger, acquisition, financing, reorganization, sale of all or a portion of our assets, bankruptcy, or dissolution, including during due diligence. Information that we hold may be transferred as a business asset in any such transaction.

(f) Authorities and other parties for legal purposes: courts, regulators, law enforcement authorities, and other parties, where we believe that disclosure is required by law or legal process, or is appropriate to protect the rights, property, or safety of any Company Party or of others, to investigate fraud, security incidents, or misuse, or to enforce the Terms and our other agreements. Where permitted by law, we may make such disclosures without notice to you.

(g) Other parties: any other person, at your direction or with your consent, including the providers of any optional technology or embedded content that you allow through the Consent Tool.

6.3 Aggregated and de-identified information. We may use and disclose aggregated, de-identified, or anonymized information without restriction. We will maintain and use de-identified information only in de-identified form and will not attempt to re-identify it, except as permitted by law to test the effectiveness of our de-identification processes.

7. SENSITIVE INFORMATION AND SUBMISSIONS

7.1 Prohibited content. The Website is a general business website and is not designed or intended to receive sensitive or confidential information. You must not send us, through the Website or by email, any passwords or access credentials, payment card or bank account details, Social Security or other government identification numbers, health or patient information (including protected health information), biometric, genetic, or precise location information, information concerning children, trade secrets, or any information that you or any other person regards as confidential.

7.2 Assumption of risk. Any such information that you elect to send is sent at your sole risk. You consent to our processing of that information to the extent necessary to address your communication, and we may delete it. No business associate, confidentiality, non-disclosure, or data processing agreement arises from your use of the Website.

7.3 Submissions. Submissions are governed by Section 11 of the Terms. Except with respect to personal information, which we process in accordance with this Policy, each Submission is non-confidential and non-proprietary.

7.4 No relationship created. As provided in Section 6 of the Terms, neither the transmission of a message to us nor the receipt of a reply from us establishes a client relationship or any advisory, fiduciary, or other relationship.

8. COMMUNICATIONS AND MARKETING PREFERENCES

8.1 Communications from us. We may contact you by email, telephone, mail, or other means using the contact details you have provided. Such communications may include responses to your inquiries, administrative and relationship communications, and, where permitted by law, marketing communications concerning us and our Affiliates.
8.2 Electronic communications. As provided in Section 12 of the Terms, you consent to receive communications from us electronically, including by email or by posting on the Website.
8.3 Marketing email opt-out. You may opt out of marketing email at any time by using the unsubscribe mechanism included in the message. Opt-out requests will be given effect within ten (10) business days.
8.4 Non-marketing communications. An opt-out from marketing does not apply to non-marketing communications, including responses to your requests and notices concerning an existing relationship or a legal matter.
8.5 Text messages and telephone calls. We do not send marketing text messages or place marketing calls using automated technology without the consent required by applicable law.

9. RETENTION

9.1 Retention period. We retain information for as long as reasonably necessary to fulfill the purposes described in this Policy, and for any longer period permitted or required by law. Those purposes include responding to you, maintaining business relationships and records, satisfying legal, tax, and accounting obligations, resolving Disputes, enforcing our agreements, and protecting the security of the Website.
9.2 Retention criteria. In determining the applicable retention period, we consider the nature and sensitivity of the information, our relationship with you, applicable legal requirements, limitation periods, and any pending or anticipated Dispute or investigation.
9.3 Correspondence and logs. Email, contact form submissions, and other correspondence may be retained as business records without a fixed retention period. Server logs and security data are retained in accordance with our standard practices and those of our hosting provider.
9.4 Consent records. Records of your choices in the Consent Tool and of your agreement to the Terms and this Policy are retained for as long as reasonably necessary to demonstrate compliance with applicable law and to resolve Disputes.
9.5 No obligation to retain. We are under no obligation to retain any information for any particular period. We may delete or de-identify information at any time, and residual copies may persist in backup or archival systems for a period thereafter.

10. SECURITY

10.1 Safeguards. We maintain reasonable administrative, technical, and physical safeguards designed to protect the information we hold, having regard to its nature. The Website uses HTTPS to encrypt information transmitted between your browser and the web server.
10.2 No guarantee of security. No method of transmission or storage is completely secure, and email in particular may not be encrypted at every stage of transmission. We do not guarantee or warrant the security of any information, and, to the fullest extent permitted by law, any information you transmit to us is transmitted at your own risk.
10.3 Your responsibilities. You are solely responsible for your own devices, software, internet access, security protections, credentials, and data backup.
10.4 Incident notification. Where applicable law requires us to notify you of a security incident, we may do so by email, mail, telephone, notice posted on the Website, or any other method permitted by law.
10.5 Reporting security concerns. Security concerns may be reported to us as provided in Section 18.

11. UNITED STATES PROCESSING; INTERNATIONAL VISITORS

11.1 United States website. The Website is operated from the United States and is intended for users located in the United States. We do not direct or market the Website to individuals located in the European Economic Area, the United Kingdom, Switzerland, or any other jurisdiction outside the United States.

11.2 Location of processing. Information is processed and stored in the United States and in any other location in which we, our Affiliates, or our service providers operate. The laws of those locations may differ from, and may afford less protection than, the laws of your place of residence.

11.3 Access from outside the United States. If you access the Website from outside the United States, you do so on your own initiative, and you acknowledge that the information you provide will be transferred to, received, and processed in the United States. To the extent permitted by law, you consent to that transfer.

11.4 Application of non-U.S. law. To the extent that a privacy law of a jurisdiction outside the United States applies to our processing of your information, we rely on the legal bases available under that law, including our legitimate interests in operating our business and responding to you, the performance of a contract, compliance with legal obligations, and, where required, your consent. You may contact us as provided in Section 18 to exercise any rights afforded to you by that law.

12. PRIVACY RIGHTS AND CHOICES

12.1 Rights that may be available. Depending on your place of residence, and subject to applicable exceptions, you may have some or all of the following rights:

(a) to confirm whether we process your personal information and to access it;
(b) to correct inaccurate personal information;
(c) to delete personal information;
(d) to obtain a portable copy of personal information;
(e) to opt out of the sale of personal information, targeted advertising, and certain profiling;
(f) to limit the use of sensitive personal information;
(g) to withdraw consent previously given; and
(h) to be free from retaliation for exercising a right conferred by law.

12.2 Limitations. These rights are not absolute. They are available only where conferred by a law that applies both to you and to us. Many privacy laws apply only to businesses that satisfy specified size or activity thresholds, and many exclude information collected in a business-to-business context. We will honor requests to the extent required by law. Where the law does not require us to act on a request, we may grant or decline it in our discretion.

12.3 Submitting a request. Requests may be submitted to the email or mailing address set out in Section 18. Each request should specify the right you wish to exercise, your state or country of residence, and sufficient detail to enable us to locate your information.

12.4 Verification and authorized agents. We may verify your identity and authority before acting on a request and may require additional information for that purpose. Where a request is submitted by an authorized agent, we may require written evidence of the agent's authority and may confirm the request with you directly.

12.5 Response. We will respond within the period required by applicable law and may extend that period where the law permits. To the extent permitted by law, we may decline a request that:

(a) we are unable to verify;
(b) is manifestly unfounded, excessive, or repetitive;
(c) would adversely affect the rights, privacy, or safety of another person;
(d) would require the disclosure of privileged, confidential, or security-sensitive information; or
(e) conflicts with a legal obligation or falls within a statutory exception.

12.6 Fees and retained information. Where permitted by law, we may charge a reasonable fee for requests that are excessive or repetitive. Following a deletion request, we may retain information necessary to complete a transaction, maintain security, comply with law, or establish, exercise, or defend legal claims.

12.7 Appeals. If we decline your request and the law of your place of residence affords a right of appeal, you may appeal by replying to our decision with "Privacy Appeal" in the subject line. We will respond within the period required by that law. If your appeal is denied, you may contact the attorney general of your state.

12.8 Requests are not legal notices. A request under this Section 12 does not constitute a Notice of Dispute or any other legal notice under the Terms. Such notices must be delivered in the manner required by the Terms.

12.9 Cookie and consent choices. Choices about cookies and similar technologies are made through the Consent Tool or your browser settings, as described in Section 4, and take effect in your browser when you save them. You do not need to submit a request under this Section 12 to make or change them.

13. STATE-SPECIFIC NOTICES

13.1 Application. This Section 13 supplements the remainder of this Policy for residents of the states identified below. It applies only to the extent that the laws referenced apply to us and to you.

13.2 Requests not to sell. We do not sell personal information. Where applicable state law entitles you to direct us not to sell personal information that we have collected or will collect about you, you may nonetheless submit a verified request to that effect. Such requests should be sent to our designated request address, info@mtwyoming.com, with the subject line "Do Not Sell Request." You may also ask to review, and to request changes to, personal information collected through the Website by following the procedure in Section 12.3.

13.3 California online privacy disclosures. The categories of information we collect are set out in Section 3. The categories of parties to which we may disclose that information are set out in Section 6. Our treatment of Do Not Track signals and opt-out preference signals, and the potential for third-party collection of information about your online activities, are addressed in Section 4. The manner in which we give notice of changes to this Policy is set out in Section 17.

13.4 California Shine the Light. California residents may request information concerning our disclosures, if any, of personal information to third parties for those parties' own direct marketing purposes during the preceding calendar year. Such requests should be sent to the address set out in Section 18 with the subject line "California Shine the Light Request."

13.5 California Consumer Privacy Act. The California Consumer Privacy Act applies only to businesses that satisfy specified thresholds. To the extent that it applies to us:

(a) the categories of personal information we collect, and the sources of that information, are described in Section 3 and correspond to identifiers, customer records, commercial information, internet or network activity, professional information, general location, and, where calls or meetings are recorded as described in Section 3.2(e), audio information;

(b) the purposes for which we collect and use personal information are described in Section 5;

(c) the categories of recipients to which we disclose personal information for business purposes are described in Section 6;

(d) we do not sell personal information or share it for cross-context behavioral advertising, we honor opt-out preference signals as described in Section 4.12, the "Your privacy choices" link at the bottom of each page of the Website serves as our opt-out mechanism for any such activity, and we have no actual knowledge that we sell or share the personal information of any individual under 16 years of age;

(e) we do not use or disclose sensitive personal information for purposes that would give rise to a right to limit its use;

(f) our retention practices are described in Section 9;

(g) California residents may exercise the rights to know, delete, correct, and opt out, and the right to be free from discrimination for doing so, in accordance with Section 12; and

(h) in the twelve months preceding the Effective Date, we have not sold or shared personal information.

13.6 Other states. Residents of other states that have enacted consumer privacy laws may have rights comparable to those described in Section 12.1, to the extent those laws apply to us. As of the Effective Date, we do not sell personal data, process personal data for targeted advertising, or engage in profiling that produces legal or similarly significant effects, as those terms are defined in those laws. If we begin to process personal data for targeted advertising, that processing will occur only if you allow the Advertising and marketing category in the Consent Tool, and you may opt out at any time through the Consent Tool or by sending the Global Privacy Control signal.

14. CHILDREN

14.1 Adults only. The Website is intended for business audiences and for adults. You must be at least 18 years of age to use the Website or to submit information through it. The Website is not directed to children, and we do not knowingly collect personal information from children under 13 years of age.

14.2 Information received from a child. If you believe that a child has provided personal information to us, please contact us as provided in Section 18. If we become aware that we hold such information, we will delete it as required by law.

15. THIRD-PARTY WEBSITES AND SERVICES

The Website may contain links to, or operate in conjunction with, websites, content, and services operated by third parties, including our Affiliates. We do not control, endorse, or assume responsibility for the content, security, or privacy practices of those third parties. Their own terms and policies apply, and you should review them before providing any information. Content embedded on the Website by a third party, such as a video player or a map, is blocked until you allow its category in the Consent Tool, as described in Section 4.5; once loaded, it is governed by that third party's own terms and policies.

16. DISPUTES; APPLICATION OF THE TERMS OF USE

16.1 Application of the Terms. Any Dispute concerning this Policy, privacy, cookies, or data in connection with the Website is subject to Sections 17 through 23 of the Terms. Those Sections contain, among other provisions, a disclaimer of warranties, limitations of liability, an indemnification obligation, a release of claims, a mandatory informal dispute resolution procedure, an agreement to binding individual arbitration, a class action and jury trial waiver, a governing law provision, an exclusive venue provision, and a one-year limitation period for bringing claims. You should review those Sections carefully.

16.2 No warranty; no third-party rights. Except as required by law, this Policy does not create any warranty or guarantee and does not confer rights on any person.

16.3 Other agreements and notices. Where you are party to a separate written agreement signed by our authorized representative, or where we provide a more specific privacy notice in connection with a particular service or interaction, that agreement or notice governs as to its subject matter.

16.4 Non-waivable rights. Nothing in this Policy limits any right that cannot lawfully be waived or limited, or restricts your ability to contact a governmental regulator.

16.5 Interpretation. Headings are included for convenience only and do not affect interpretation. The word "including" means "including without limitation." The English-language version of this Policy prevails over any translation.

17. AMENDMENTS TO THIS POLICY

17.1 Right to amend. We may amend this Policy at any time, in our sole discretion, by posting a revised version on the Website bearing a new Effective Date. A revised Policy takes effect on the Effective Date stated in it, unless otherwise required by law.
17.2 Material changes. We will give notice of any material change by posting the revised Policy on the Website. Where the law requires additional measures, such as direct notice or consent, we will comply with those requirements.
17.3 Continued use. Your continued use of the Website after a revised Policy takes effect constitutes your acknowledgment of the revised Policy. You are encouraged to review this Policy each time you use the Website.
17.4 Posted versions. We post the current Policy on the Website as a downloadable PDF and as on-page text. The two are intended to be identical. If they differ, the PDF controls.
